[REDACTED] Troops observed wore red-bordered black epauletts with tank, artillery, motor transport and signal insignia. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Up to 10 T-34/35 tanks regularly practiced at the large drill ground. The turrets of some of the tanks were marked with large white balls. While driving, turrets and guns were moved and short bursts from machine guns were heard. After the 40-minute practices, the tanks used to drive up to a newly erected observation point, which was occupied by observers with binoculars. Subsequently, the tank crews were replaced from about 100 troops who were soon near the bridge. Motor vehicles seen en route to and from the installation and the training area [REDACTED]
